

STABLE VIEW SPOTLIGHT: RENE ROBERTSON

If there is a resident, boarder, or staff member at Stable View that you want to learn more about, please send emma@stableviewfarm.com an email with a spotlight recommendation.

Rene Robertson is a full-time resident at Stable View. She and her mom, Pam, also board their two horses on the farm, Rooster and Biscuit. A native of Louisville, Kentucky, Robertson now calls Aiken her home. She is a nurse at Aiken Regional Medical Center.

When asked about why she moved south she said, "I've always liked Aiken as a horse community and then I took a travel job and never left. It's warm and it's cold in Kentucky."

Both of her horses event. She got Rooster when she was twelve and now he's mostly retired and her mom rides him. She has had Biscuit for eight years and purchased him when she became a nurse. Her goal is to compete at Oktoberfest this Fall.

Robertson has enjoyed her time at Stable View. When asked about her experience she said, "I like Monday night dinners and I like Cyndy and Barry. I like everybody. And it's beautiful. What else could you want? It's quiet and relaxing. I like how it's like a community. We all do things together and it's a good time."

Robertson sums up how many feel after they leave "the gathering place." She exclaimed, "It's the best place on earth."
