Brittany Jamison is a frequent competitor at Stable View's Dressage Shows. She started riding when she was just big enough for her dad to be able to put her on the back of a horse. She began her riding career doing western and mostly catch riding. Brittany shared, "When I went off to college, I made the switch from barrel racing to eventing. While I attended UNH, I was fortunate enough to meet Verne Batchelder. Verne became a mentor that sculpted the rider I am today. Thus, starting my love for Dressage."

Brittany has one personal horse named Lexicon VEB, or Lex as he's known in the barn. He is an eight-year-old Hanoverian Gelding by Londontime out of a full sister to Don Index. She describes him saying, "He's powerful and fun and is the kindest soul." In addition to Lex, she says, "I am also lucky enough to be helping to develop many of my client's horses ranging from Spanish horses to warmbloods and many things in between."

Besides riding, Brittany is a mom to two little boys. She shared, "They are full of life and LOVE to get dirty, but would far prefer playing on the tractor than with the horses. My oldest son enjoys archery so I have been learning LOTS about that. My youngest son is the quiet type who enjoys school work and being read a good book."

Recently, Brittany was able to develop her first horse to the Grand Prix level. She said, "This year, I am hoping to dabble into the world of musical freestyles and work towards my bars. I have also set my focus towards my clients. I am hoping to help those who wish to compete more to get out this season. We are starting to develop a wonderful group of riders and show team. Sometimes that is just as rewarding as competing myself."

As far as her time competing at Stable View, Brittany shared, "I enjoy competing at Stable View for not only the beautiful facility but the incredible staff. Christina has always been there to answer FAR too many questions for me. And there couldn't be a more welcoming face than Gayl as a warm-up steward. I know there are so many more people that go into the running of these shows but these two really stand out to me and my clients." Stable View wishes Brittany and her clients the best of luck in their 2024 season.
