The Sharer Dale Team has been a long-time supporter of Stable View. Quite literally as Sharer Dale herself was the real estate agent to show the Stable View property to Barry and Cyndy. She shared, "It was our very first property we looked at amongst eight that were planned for the day. I pretty much told Barry that he might as well quit while he was ahead because Cyndy was in love. I'm so proud of what they've accomplished because Barry kept saying he was going to retire and he's probably working harder now than he ever has in his whole career. They've accomplished quite a magical environment for those of us in Aiken and everyone who comes."

The Sharer Dale Team is currently Sharer and Madison McEvoy. They both began their journeys in real estate from family connections. Sharer's mom was a realtor. Sharer did lots of assistant work when she was younger before deciding the career was a fit for her too. She shared, "My mom and I worked together, and then when I moved down here to Aiken I was by myself, and then I just started having younger women that worked for me and it was like a mentorship. It just grew from there - I got busier and needed more assistants and I enjoyed working with those I could have some positive influence on."

Madison meanwhile got started in the industry because of her dad. She said, "My grandfather was also in real estate. They were involved in commercial real estate so I was everyone's assistant forever. When Covid hit I had just graduated college and I just decided why not get my license. So I got my license in Texas and then I sold my house as my first sale and moved to South Carolina."

Both Sharer and Madison ride horses which helps tremendously in assisting clients in buying and selling farms. They both caught the "horse bug" at summer camp and there was no turning back. After camp, Sharer said, "My mom let me ride but then I had to take a hiatus, my folks got divorced, and I didn't ride from when I was thirteen until I was twenty-five. After college, I sold my condo, and I got a horse." Meanwhile, Madison shared, "My grandfather was actually in horse racing and he bought me my first pony. I named her Annie because she was red and she was highly allergic to pecan trees. We lived on a pecan orchard so we had to ship her up north. After that, he put me in riding lessons and found me a trainer when I was about seven years old."

The Sharer Dale Team sponsored two gazebos at the April CCI2/3/4*-S. They were joined by many clients and friends. Sharer said, "I thought the gazebos were a great addition and were very comfortable. The furniture is beautiful. I thought it made you feel like you were part of the show." Madison shared, "The views were fantastic. You had the show jumping behind you, you could watch practice, and you had great views of the cross country."
